Have a wonderful babywearing time! ☺

Adjustable soft structured baby carrier MoniLu UNI Start is suitable for children from birth (50cm, 3,5kg) up to approximately 1 year. Size of the carrier is easily adjustable on several spots.

To adjust the width of the back support, please release the defining strap on the both sides of waist belt. To set the fasting system on the belt release the velcro and move the fabric as far as you need. Once set, please secure velcro with gentle pressure on waist belt area. Cover the remaining revealed velcro with defining strap.

You can find stitching on the waist belt part of the velcro. Those stitching are used as the marks for level of adjusting the width of the back support. They match with following approximate height of the kid:

"maximum": 75 cm Middle stitching: 65 cm "minimum": 50 cm

Always adjust both sides of back support evenly!

Stitching on velcro are only approximate. Please respect the baby's actual position in carrier. The back support should always lead from knee to knee.

Once you adjust both sides equally, straigten the waist belt so that is not twisted outwards but inwards towards the wearer. Check the overal settings. This completes setting the width of the back support. Now reduce the height of the back support.

The height of back support can be adjusted with black straps on the front sides of carrier. Tightening strap is partially hidden inside carrier. To shrink the back support, please pull the straps. To extend the back support, just lift the buckle on adjustment straps.

Always check that straps are tighten evenly. These straps can be adjusted also when baby is carried.

To reduce the width of the back support under the child's neck use a rubber band under the hood. The resulting collar supports the head of newborns.

For small babies without firm neck, use rolled up hood as additional neck support as displayed on pictures bellow. Roll up the hood and attach its rubber band in the dedicated hook placed on the shoulder strap.

When using hood to cover sleeping baby head, use the second, adjustable hook above.

Place the waist belt on your belt. Pull the buckle through the safety rubber band, fasten the buckle and secure the safety lock and tight the belt. Don't underestimate this triple safety system!

Place the baby on your belly, facing towards you. Keep in mind that correct ergonomic position is with baby's bum slightly covering the waist belt, legs well spread and knees risen above the bum level. Once positioned, rise the back support part over the baby's back and wear the shoulders straps, one by one. Fasten the back buckle afterwards and adjust the length of the back strap if needed.

Grasp the baby's knees and, by pulling child up, place it firmly in the fabric of the back support.

Pull the back support toward baby's shoulder. Tighten or loosen the shoulder straps as you need.

Adjust the width of the back support under the child's neck using a rubber band under the hood.

Switching the side straps under the baby's bum * use from birth to about 6-8 weeks *

Unfasten the shoulder strap, loosen it sufficiently and guide it under the baby's knee. Snap the buckle into the trident under the child's bum. Do the same on the other side. Tighten the straps as required.

(You do not need to unfasten the straps when taking the child out of the carrier. Just pull the straps out / under baby's legs, so carrier remains set for you to carry it again.)

Once the baby slowly begins to hold his head and his spine begins to straighten, you can fasten the straps to the side buckles.

(You can then elegantly remove the unused trident from rubber band on the waist belt.)

Note: The seating position is right if baby covers one third of waist belt with his bum. Back support should always reach to the baby's neck. Kid's arms should stay inside the carrier as long as baby is not able to sit by her/himself on the floor.
